Welcome to Kepasa

A great addition to the Beer Sheva restaurant scene.

BY SIVAN AZULAY

After living life as a Tel Avivan for almost ten years, two months ago I found myself moving to the Capital of the Negev, Beer Sheva. At last, my relocation time has come. Yay! Want to know what was the first thing I did when I stepped into my new home? Well, like every other food lover, I looked for a decent place to eat. Hmm, can you blame me? We were (my dining partner and I) starving to death after 12 hours of packing and unpacking, so I picked up a map (who am I kidding? - Good old Waze) and my partner, and we hit the road. To be fair, my partner is an ex-Beer Shevian, but just like me, wasn't really aware of all that the city has to offer. Beer Sheva has truly developed over the past few years.

The road to the Big shopping center and the revelation of Kepasa

Located at Beer Sheva's Big outdoor shopping center, Kepasa offers simple, fresh, Mediterranean food in a clean and cozy setting. It has the feel and atmosphere of a restaurant that you'd go to for a special occasion, but the tasty, simple food and the reasonable (ish) prices make it a realistic choice for your dining repertoire (check out the 1+1 deals on main courses). The place is big and spacious, with large wooden furniture which gives it a homey feeling. A kind of restaurant where you can really enjoy sitting back and chilling after dinner, and not just eat and run. Well, that's just what we did. Remember? Tired and starved to death?

What we ate?

We started off with a crunchy home focaccia, served alongside three dips: eggplant (חציל) cream, fresh tomato salsa, and a pesto, which was great. Next, we had the roasted beet (סלק) carpaccio with goat cheese (גבינת עיזים), onion and herbs (עשבי תיבול) - one of my favorites. My partner went for the fish crudo wrapped in avocado layers and almonds (שקדים), which was well seasoned. Our main courses were grilled sea bass (לברק) fillet in spicy tomato sauce, artichoke and herbs. This delicious dish was served with bread to complete the experience. You know, to dip!

The second course was lamb (כבש) spare ribs, which were professionally grilled, and mashed potatoes פירה (תפוחי אדמה). Of course, we left some room for sweets - kadaif rolls filled with pistachio cream, and served alongside yogurt honey ice cream. Yummy!

What we drank?

It was a day that called for some refreshing drinks (and alcohol), so the obvious choice was cold sangrias. The result: one very happy couple. Fresh and intoxicated!

And the service?

The staff was attentive and friendly.

Good for: Special occasion, first date, group dinner; work lunch.

Style of food: Mediterranean tapas bar.

Address: Heil Handasa Street 6, Beer Sheva, 08-6655122
